Frida Kahlo 1907-1954

Frida Kahlo grew up in a house called La Casa Azul with her parents and 6 sisters. That house is now the Frida Kahlo museum. As a child, Frida loved to draw. At age 6, she caught a disease called polio which damaged her right leg.

Initially studying medicine, Kahlo changed her career after a serious accident. As part of her recovery, Kahlo underwent thirty-five operations but she kept painting. Her mother had a special easel made so she could paint in bed, and her father lent her his box of oil paints and some brushes.

Frida often painted portraits of herself. She wanted to show people about her suffering, her inability to have children, and also the people in her life. She created 143 paintings, and of these, 55 are self-portraits.

Frida was proud of her Mexican heritage. She was inspired by traditional Mexican art which is colorful, bright, and often symbolic. It is full of flowers, figures, dancing, music, and

La Sagrada Familia

The Sagrada Família (full name Basílica de la Sagrada Família) is a large Roman Catholic church in Barcelona, Catalonia, Spain. It was designed by Antoni Gaudí (1852–1926).

Although not finished, the church is a UNESCO World Heritage Site. In November 2010 it was consecrated (for religious purpose) and made a minor basilica. The Building of the Sagrada Família began in 1883. He took over with his ideas on architecture and Gaudí worked on it until he died. In 1926, less than a quarter of the building was completed. The expected finish date of 2026–100 years after Gaudí's death. Gaudí also designed Parc Güell in Barcelona between 1900 and 1914 and redeveloped the city's files. Today, it is one of Barcelona's most famous landmarks.
